

Malawi Baseline Livelihood Profiles (Draft) May/June 2003

Southern Lakeshore
Food Crops	Maize Rice	This is the principal fishing area of Malawi, with the shallow waters in the southern end of the lake favouring participation by many small-scale fishermen. Fishing dominates the economy, in fish sales for the 'better-off' as well as in ganyu and fish trading for the 'poor' and 'middle'. Crop production is also important but is insufficient to cover local food requirements in most years, a situation that is worsened by the post-harvest sale of crops by both 'poor' and 'middle' groups.
Income Sources	Fishing Fishing ganyu Fish trading
Livestock	Goats
